15	I am so grateful to this program!! What a great opportunity for the kids to really learn information that can save their lives. It is also great to know that you focus on the idea of them making choices because it is in the end up to them. I might include in the information for parents a list of tips for having tough conversations with kids. Sometimes parents don't know where to start or maybe what to say. My other suggestion is to include some adolescent brain development information for the kids. Research has shown that the adolescent brain knows that things are risky behavior, but then does it anyway. It might be helpful for kids to know that in the stage of development they are in their brain can kinda play tricks on them. The more tools and understanding they have the more likely they will resist dangerous activities!	4/6/2023 11:14 AM

17	I'm glad the school is also trying to prepare these young kids, as it seems to be present at a younger ages currently, to the dangers of drugs and opening up the line of communication with them as well. It is nice when they hear it from the community as well as at home! They are also presenting it in a way to get their attention and make it more fun and interesting.	4/6/2023 8:47 AM
